NUTRITION TIP OF THE WEEK FROM THE KSC FITNESS CENTERS: Sizing up Food Portion Sizes. Large serving sizes can affect OUR size! Sometimes when we try to prevent food from going to waste, we find it going to our waist. Portion sizes are getting bigger, and so are people. Commonly available food portions were compared with standard portion serving sizes of the U.S. Department of Agriculture's (USDA) Food Guide Pyramid in a research. Their findings included:

- Cookies were as much as 7 times standard portion sizes.
• Servings of cooked pasta were often nearly 5 times standard portion sizes.
• Muffins weighed in at over 3 times standard portion sizes.
• The American croissant is bigger and contains about 100 more calories than one in France.
• When the bagel was introduced to the U.S. it weighed 1 1/2 ounces and contained 116 calories. Today's American bagel is about triple the size and calories. It weighs in around 4 to 4 1/2 ounces and may contain over 300 calories.
• The Mexican quesadilla has doubled in calories and increased in size. In Mexico, a quesadilla is a 5-inch tortilla containing around 540 calories and 32 grams of fat. The American quesadilla is typically 10 inches and Polk calculates that one serving could contain over 1,200 calories and 70 grams of fat.

While these larger portions may be appropriate for an active person, they may be too much for a more sedentary person. However, many of us may not think about decreasing our portion sizes in relation to our activity level. When is the last time you REALLY looked at a Nutrition Facts label on a food package? For example, a QUICK glance at a nutrition label on a cereal box may lull you into thinking your calories are under control. But, look again! What SIZE is that serving of cereal? The label may say you're only consuming 80 calories PER SERVING. Now, read a little closer. For example, it may say a serving SIZE is 1/4 cup. Now, pour out your usual serving size and measure it! Then, compare it to the label serving size. Chances are, you're eating two, three, four or more times the amount on the label. BOTTOM LINE: If you're putting on the pounds, check those portion sizes. Look at the label to learn the SIZE of serving and NUMBER of servings. Source: http://lancaster.unl.edu/food/ftoct02.htm. mailto:orrindl@kscems.ksc.nasa.gov. (TA-C2)
